Washington Police Band Will Perform

ROMNEY, W. Va .- "The Romney Revue of '62", a colorful presentation and pretty girls who sing and dance their way through a 60-minute show under the stars on an outdoor stage, and a concert by the Metropolitan Police Band of Washington, D. C., are two of the highlights of the Romney Bicentennial celebration to be held August 8-11

The setting for these as weil as all other events is the spacious and beautiful campus of the West Virginia Schools for the Deaf and Blind in Romney.

The "Revue" is a musical extravaganza produced and directed by the professional showmen.
Emmett and Nina Oldfield of Romney, and it will be a delightful diversion for the hundreds expected to attend the two showings the evenings of August 8 and 10. The 45-member Metropolitan Police Band will present Students Today an hour's concert beginning at 5:30 o'clock, EDST, August 11. Washington Police Band Will Perform

ROMNEY, W. Va .- "The Romney Revue of '62''. a colorful presentation and pretty girls who sing and dance their way through a 60-minute show under the stars on an outdoor stage, and a concert by the Metropolitan Police Band of Washington, D. C., are two of the highlights of the Romney Bicentennial celebration to be held August 8-11.

The setting for these as weil as all other events is the spacious and beautiful campus of the West Virginia Schools for the Deaf and Blind in Romney

The "Revue" is a musical extravaganza produced and directed by the professional showmen. Emmett and Nina Oldfield of Romney, and it will be a delightful diversion for the hundreds expected to attend the two showings the evenings of August 8 and 10. Khrushchev's Four Claims Are False

The United States is leading the "ignoble fight" against communism, and is therefore responsible for international tensions. This is what Nikita Khrushchev told a group of American newspaper editors in Moscow. In this brief space, Khrushchev lumped four implications, all

The fight the United States is leading is not ignoble. Khrushchev still uses Stalin's ignoble methods against the free world - including a constant barrage of propaganda lies. We run risks, we pour out our money, we help others — in a fight that is far from ignoble.

Russia conducts a policy of active hostility against us and a policy of colonial aggression against weaker nations.

It is not true that the United States causes tension by defending itself; the tension would exist anyway. The tension in Korea in 1950, for example, existed because Russia instigated North Korean communists to aggression, and would have existed if the U. S. had done nothing.

Instead of starting the cold war, as Khrushchev implies, the U.S. during World War II not only gave Russia billions in lendlease (which she refuses to pay even at a few cents on the dollar), but American officials from President Roosevelt down kept saying over and over that this country wanted Russia as a postwar friend.

Stalin wasn't interested, and Khrushchev isn't interested today. Stalin kept the red army at wartime strength while the U. S. demobilized. Breaking promises right and left, he seized the Balkan countries, Poland and Czechoslovakia. He divided Germany and divided Berlin.

Khrushchev has followed through on all that. He broke the 1955 promises he gave President Eisnehower on a German settlement to be preceded by free all-German elections. Todays he is trying to do what Stalin failed to do -cut off West Berlin from the West, and absorb it. Where Stalin launched the Berlin blockade, Khrushchev built the Berlin wall.

These Days

Timing

The Kennedy Administration is consciously young. The President has avoided the impetuosity of oldsters land has gathered about him younger men who are naturally self-conscious of their youth and are therefore excessively deliberate. They miss timing.

Franklin D. Roosevelt's politcal brilliance lay in timing. He often did the obviously wrong thing at the right time. His political gifts were enormous because he studied the master Al Smith.

Older men live by experience, stored up in their minds. Younger men are Marco Polos discovering everything anew. This does not mean that younger men may not achieve as much as older men. In the arts, for instance, inspiration is as important as experience. Mozart, the stripling, produced more lasting music than anyone and died before he matured.

In politics, however, timing is related to experience. May 28, for instance, should have been tackled no later than June 1. Advice to a President comes from many sources, most of them either theories which may be harmful. Self-interest must, of course, be screened, assessed, discounted and finally related to

In the field of economics, objective advice is utterly impossible. The objective person, in this field, can only be an empty-headed technician who says that here are a bunch of figures, do with them what you can. Figures do not lie, but they require interpretation at every stage. A banker may regard a swift flow of money as an indication of prosperity; an economist may regard the same figures as a dangerous inflation out of which can only come a sharp recession or possibly a depression.

A manuafacturer of capital goods like steel or machine tools may regard a building boom as violently beneficial; the manufacturer of consumers goods may worry about the concentration of credit in fields other than his own.

Department stores do not respond so rapidly because they sell household wares that are not readily postponable, but specialty shops and concessions in the department stores respond more swiftly to delays in purchasing postponable items. May and June should be good for furniture and other household goods because marriages tend to occur in June and July and therefore new homes are set up. It is, however, not until after Labor Day that it is possible to gauge the prospective Christmas season.

The businessmen involved in this economic gambit. manufacturers, wholesalers, jobbers, retailers, department stores, small businessmen, represent a very large part of the business world. A man like Bernard Gimbel, for instance, has more economic know-how than any banker I have ever encountered. His sensitivity must be sure and timing perfect.

The President is now moving more rapidly into the economic field. Every step he has taken during the past fortnight, no matter how small, has been beneficial. Had he taken such steps in larger stride and more sharply immediately after May 28, he would have been a national hero instead of a subject of jokes which are hardly amusing.

The Medicare Bill must be judged from this standpoint. Tacking it on to the Social Security System presupposed that Social Security is popular. Workers regard it as a pay-roll tax. They prefer benefits outside of Social Security and union contracts prove this to be so. Many occasional and marginal workers decline obs when they are asked for their Social Security Jumbers. Also many marginal workers do not pay income taxes; they therefore fear that the Social Security number is an entrapment, leading to income

If the object of Medicare was to help those over 65, it should not have been tied to the Social Security System. If its object was to expand the Social Security System, it was bound to fail. Surely, It was unwise to raise this issue during the Saskatchewan doctors' strike which hits a sympathetic shord among American practicing doctors, particularly the general practioners who are at the bottom of the totem pole of the medical profession. A system of medical economics can be worked out which will function if it does not get mixed up with side issues. Advice on this subject of a beneficial nature can come to the President, not from the top men of the profession, the great names, men likely to be connected with foundations or associations but by poliing general practitioners, the men actually involved in YOUNG TED KENNEDY-The President's brother, Ted Kennedy, is in a tough primary race for the Massachusetts senatorial nomination. His opposition is using two arguments against him lack of experience and a feeling among the public that Ted would make it "too many Kennedys in Washington.

The President was asked about this latter point at his press conference the other day. He replied that it would be up to the voters of Massachusetts to decide.

Then, the President went on to comment on his views of his brother's political campaign. He said he had confidence in Ted, and recalled that his youngest brother was in charge of his own campaign in the West-that is, his fight for popular and electoral votes in the home grounds of GOP presidential candidate Richard M. Nixon. The President left the inference that his "confidence" in his brother stemmed from the good job he had done politically in that area. What he failed to mention was that he lost all three western states - California, Oregon and Washington-to Nixon.

While the President didn't mention it, Ted's political opposition in Massachusetts-Ed McCormack, nephew of the Speaker of the House, lost no time in planning to make political hay out of the inference—that Kennedy's "confidence" in his younger brother was based on failure-not on terprises by brandishing antitrust suits in their faces almost every day. It is interesting to note that the executives of the 12 steel companies which got the President's identical letter are virtually forbidden to discuss it with each other, since the subject is price making. The steel companies could be hauled into court for price collusion if they as much as sat down together to discuss what kind of replies they should make as an industry.' ter of replacing worn-out machinery. The present tax laws are woefully inadequate. The Kennedy Administration to some extent recognizes the problem, but its proposed remedy has been regarded as worse that the ailment. A group of theorists came forth with a plan of limited scope which the Administration sponsored. But the basic need for all industry and business to meet depreciation problem was sidetracked.

Oct. 26, 1961: "The truth is that the economic system of this country cannot absorb these extensive increases in wage costs and still accumulate enough profits to buy the desired amount of new plant and equipment. That's why the heavy-goods industries, which are today the source of so much unemployment, have been hurt in recent months."

All this was written before the steel controversy broke out on April 11, 1962. It's a summarization of the thinking of businessmen who were worried and anxious, and yet the Administration apparently did not sense what was happening and took no steps to correct the growing uncertainty which has finally resulted in a mass psychology of fear and apprehension. Now there's talk of an immediate tax cut, and new depreciation rules have been announced. But it may be wondered what would have happened if the Administration had really tackled this whole problem in earnest sometime during the year 1961. Maybe business would have been booming by now.

Some years ago the Detroit Tigers and the New York Yankees met for an exhibition game during the spring training and a cheeky recruit, named Hal Newhouser, destined for future stardom, was given his first chance to confront the vaunted Yankee sluggers. With veteran umpire Bill Klem calling balls and strikes, Newhouser retired the first two Yank hitters easily enough. Then Joe DiMaggio advanced to the plate.

Newhouser zipped across a fast one. "Ball one." intoned Klem. Newhouser didn't like the call Another pitch came whizzing in. 'Ball two," decreed Klem. Newhouser glared, pounded his glove, and fidgeted on the mound. When his next pitch was ruled "Ball three," he really exploded, kicking dirt, and tossing his cap in the air. Umpire Klem ignored his pyrotechnics.

Newhouser's fourth pitch was a beauty and Joe Di Maggio, ignoring the fact that the count was three and nothing, swung gracefully and sent the ball soaring far over the left field fence. As he jogged around the bases, Umpire Klem removed his mask, walked half way to the pitcher's mound and said softly to the disgruntled Newhouser, "You see, son, if you pitch a strike, Mr. Di Maggio will tell you so.

Learn to recognize poison ivy and then avoid it. The plant grows as a vine, a trailing shrub, and an erect bush. The vine may climb 40 feet and the bush often rises to 4 feet. This is mentioned because some think of poison ivy only as a weed.

The three leaflets generally have smooth edges and a shiny surface. They are green except in spring and fall, when they may be red. The trouble maker is the sap that flows through the roots, stems, fruit, flowers, leaves, and

The typical rash develops whenever this sticky resin touches the skin. The plant is easy to brush up against when walking through woods, fields, or even REPLY city parks. It is not necessary to touch the plant with the bare hands as the oil may adhere to the shoes, trousers, gloves, picnic baskets, golf clubs, or tools. If these objects are touched at a later date, the eruption may blossom out. Or the dog may run through a patch of poison ivy and bring it back to you. When the plant is burned, the toxic substance (urushoil) vaporizes and tiny droplets may be carried into the air with the smoke. Blisters may arise wherever these settle on the bare

Wash the exposed areas with strong soap and water or apply alcohol, gasoline, or kerosene. This should be done immediately because the longer urushoil remains on the hands or arms, the greater the chance of developing poison ivy dermatitis.

Some authorities have found that a cream containing a mixture of zirconium oxide and an antihistaminic drug offers protection. It is worth trying if many days are to be spent in the country, but don't bank on full protection.

richest man in the Senate, who sits on the strategic Senate Finance Committee

Inside that committee he tried to put across an amendment to the public welfare bill which would give the state of West Virginia $11,000,000 and might eventually add up to $21,000,000-due to the fact that West Virginia had illegally used federal funds for dependent children

Secretary of HEW Ribicoff discovered this illegal expenditure by West Virginia and was in the process of cracking down on it. But Bob Kerr came to the rescue. In a secret deal with West Virginia's Sen. Jennings Randolph, he agreed to get the money voted for West Virginia retroactively, all the way back to July 1, 1961on condition Randolph would vote against medicare.

A retroactive vote of this kind is almost unheard of, and the Senate Finance Committee turned it down. So the sly Senator from Oklahoma waited until July 3 when many Senators were away for the 4th of July holiday, then took the amendment up on the Senate floor.

Describing it as an unimportant little amendment, Kerr slipped it by a sleepy Senate

Having done this favor for Senator Randolph, Kerr held him to the deal. That was why, despite phone calls from President Kennedy. Vice President Johnson, Gov William Barron of West Virginia, Gov. the morning. Then it lifted and the Japanese patrol boat headed east between Cheju and Wando. on the southern tip of Korea. The skiper swung his glasses north, sweeping the flat sea slowly, until a ship silhouetted itself on his eyes. He became excited. The navigator came running and gave the position of the strange ship as 34 degrees north, 123 degrees. 15 minutes east

The captain picked up his microphone and called. "Seaweed calling minnow. Seaweed calling minnow. Killer shark operating in area four dash one three. Repeat. Killer shark in four dash one three." At once, all Japanese fishing vessels in the area hauled in their nets and headed away. This is part of the fishing war which is spreading between

The Japanese, the Koreans, the Norwegians and the Icelanders are among the great fishing nations of the world. It is getting more difficult to supply the fishing needs of the world. Nations guard their fishing shoals jealously. For centuries, all seacoast countries proclaimed sovereignty over the sea stretching three miles from the beaches.

This has been enlarged unilaterally until now, some nations do not recognize the coastal proclamations of others. Syngman Rhee, the hungry fox of Korea, started the war by announcing that his country has sovereignty over all waters within 200 miles of her coastline. The Japanese, who had fished these waters for years, and who, by treaty, are denied their old fishing rights off the Kuriles, refused to recognize Rhe's equity in distant seas.

South Korea sent out patrol vessels which fired on Japanese trawlers far out of sight of land, The Japanese, who did not want to create an incident, sent fast patrol vessels to "mother" the fishing boats. When a Korean patrol boat is sighted, the Japanese advise the trawlers in code. Still, Korea seizes about 30 Japanese fishing boats each year, and tosses their crews into prison. In a book called "Conquest of the Sea." the author, Cord - Christian Troebst, points out that, in 10 years, the United States will be paying to import fish from other nations.

The population explosion, in conjunction with the depletion of good fishing grounds, has caused British and Japanese trawlers to go as far as the coast of Chile for fish. Pollution by industrial plants in the United States has caused the cod, the tuna and sometimes the blue fish to move farther and farther from shore.

The waters, in many instances, are unfit for fishing, for bathing, and some of the crustacea cause hepatitis. The bacteria count off most harbors is dangerously high. Must we believe, then, that there are fewer fish in the sea than there were a hundred years

No. The seas teem with fish. other shoals, other feeding and you have to chase it!

The mist remained constant in grounds where the miniscule food. zooplankton and phytoplankton, abound. The small fish feed on this; the big fish feed on the small fish. Still, man spends little time and even less money studying fish and their habits. In May 1961, a Danish frigate fired at a British fishing trawler, the Red Crusader, and hit it. The Danes said the British were fishing in Danish waters. Three years earlier, Iceland extended her territorial waters from four to 12 miles. The English became so angry that they sent trawlers to fish within seven miles of Iceland, and protected them with warships. Part of the British report on all fishing applies to the whole world:

. fishing in 1958 brought in little more than the previous year in spite of more intense efforts. The haul per boat has dropped considerably. The catch next year will probably be even worse .

In 1928, the Boston fishing fleet accounted for 200 million pounds of haddock alone. Cord-Christian Troebst points out that, in 1958, they brought in 70 million pounds. Two years ago, the salmon catch in Alaska dropped 40 percent. Ten years ago, 600,-000 tons of sardines were canned on the U.S. West Coast. A year later, it dropped to 5,000 tons.

The Soviet fishing fleet puts out five trawlers for every one the United States has. In 1958, the Russians caught 6,800,000 pounds of fish, a lot of it off the Grand Banks. Our catch was 4,-800,000 pounds. Khrushchev's Four Claims Are False

The United States is leading the "ignoble fight" against communism, and is therefore responsible for international tensions. This is what Nikita Khrushchev told a group of American newspaper editors in Moscow. In this brief space, Khrushchev lumped four implications, all

The fight the United States is leading is not ignoble. Khrushchev still uses Stalin's ignoble methods against the free world - including a constant barrage of propaganda lies. We run risks, we pour out our money, we help others — in a fight that is far from ignoble.

Russia conducts a policy of active hostility against us and a policy of colonial aggression against weaker nations.

It is not true that the United States causes tension by defending itself; the tension would exist anyway. The tension in Korea in 1950, for example, existed because Russia instigated North Korean communists to aggression, and would have existed if the U.S. had done nothing.

Instead of starting the cold war, as Khrushchev implies, the U. S. during World War II not only gave Russia billions in lendlease (which she refuses to pay even at a few cents on the dollar), but American officials from President Roosevelt down kept saying over and over that this country wanted Russia as a postwar friend.

Stalin wasn't interested, and Khrushchev isn't interested today. Stalin kept the red army at wartime strength while the U. S. demobilized. Breaking promises right and left, he seized the Balkan countries, Poland and Czechoslovakia. He divided Germany and divided Berlin.

Khrushchev has followed through on all that. He broke the 1955 promises he gave President Eisnehower on a German settlement to be preceded by free all-German elections. Todays he is trying to do what Stalin failed to do -cut off West Berlin from the West, and absorb it. Where Stalin launched the Berlin blockade, Khrushchev built the Berlin wall.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Timing

The Kennedy Administration is consciously young. and has gathered about him younger men who are naturally self-conscious of their youth and are therefore excessively deliberate. They miss timing.

Franklin D. Roosevelt's political brilliance lay in timing. He often did the obviously wrong thing at the right time. His political gifts were enormous because he studied the master Al Smith.

Older men live by experience, stored up in their minds. Younger men are Marco Polos discovering everything anew. This does not mean that younger men may not achieve as much as older men. In the arts, for instance, inspiration is as important as experience. Mozart, the stripling, produced more lasting music than anyone and died before

In politics, however, timing is related to experience. May 28, for instance, should have been tackled no later than June 1. Advice to a President comes from many sources, most of them either theories which may be harmful. Self-interest must, of course, be screened, assessed, discounted and finally related to

In the field of economics, objective advice is utterly impossible. The objective person, in this field, can only be an empty-headed technician who says that here are a bunch of figures, do with them what you can. Figures do not lie, but they require interpretation at every stage. A banker may regard a swift flow of money as an indication of prosperity; an economist may regard the same figures as a dangerous inflation out of which can only come a sharp recession or possibly a depression.

A manuafacturer of capital goods like steel or machine tools may regard a building boom as violently beneficial: the manufacturer of consumers goods may worry about the concentration of credit in fields other

Department stores do not respond so rapidly because they sell household wares that are not readily postponable, but specialty shops and concessions in the department stores respond more swiftly to delays in purchasing postponable items. May and June should be good for furniture and other household goods because marriages tend to occur in June and July and therefore new homes are set up. It is, however, not until after Labor Day that it is possible to gauge the prospective Christmas season.

The businessmen involved in this economic gambit, manufacturers, wholesalers, jobbers, retailers, department stores, small businessmen, represent a very large part of the business world. A man like Bernard Gimbel, for instance, has more economic know-how than any banker I have ever encountered. His sensitivity must be sure and timing perfect.

The President is now moving more rapidly into the economic field. Every step he has taken during the past fortnight, no matter how small, has been beneficial. Had he taken such steps in larger stride and more sharply immediately after May 28, he would have been a national hero instead of a subject of jokes which are hardly amusing.

The Medicare Bill must be judged from this standpoint. Tacking it on to the Social Security System presupposed that Social Security is popular. Workers regard it as a pay-roll tax. They prefer benefits outside of Social Security and union contracts prove this to be so. Many occasional and marginal workers decline jobs when they are asked for their Social Security Jumbers. Also many marginal workers do not pay income taxes; they therefore fear that the Social Security number is an entrapment, leading to income

If the object of Medicare was to help those over 65, it should not have been tied to the Social Security System. If its object was to expand the Social Security System, it was bound to fail. Surely, It was unwise to raise this issue during the Saskatchewan doctors' strike which hits a sympathetic shord among American practicing doctors, particularly the general practioners who are at the bottom of the totem pole of the medical profession. A system of medical economics can be worked out which will function if it does not get mixed up with side issues. Advice on this subject of a beneficial nature can come to the President, not from the top men of the profession, the great names, men likely to be connected with foundations or associations but by polling general practitioners, the men actually involved in sidetracked. Oct. 26, 1961: "The truth is that the economic system of this country cannot absorb these extensive increases in wage costs and still accumulate enough profits to buy the desired amount of new plant and equipment. That's why the heavy-goods industries, which are today the source of so much unemployment, have been hurt in recent months."

All this was written before the steel controversy broke out on April 11, 1962. It's a summarization of the thinking of businessmen who were worried and anxious, and yet the Administration apparently did not sense what was happening and took no steps to correct the growing uncertainty which has finally resulted in a mass psychology of fear and apprehension. Now there's talk of an immediate tax cut, and new depreciation rules have been announced. But it may be wondered what would have happened if the Administration had really tackled this whole problem in earnest sometime during the year 1961. Maybe business would have been booming by now.

To counteract their "no show" rule, whereby a passenger is fined if he doesn't show up, Mac-Donald has introduced a "no go" bill, to fine the airlines.

The airlines are already subject to nominal fines under the CAB ruling if they oversell space and don't have a place for a passenger who has purchased a tickket. But the Congressman from Massachusetts argues that airline failure to have a seat for a scheduled passenger can cost him thousands of dollars, far more than the nominal fine required by CAB rules. The mist remained constant in the morning. Then it lifted and the Japanese patrol boat headed east between Cheju and Wando, on the southern tip of Korea. The skiper swung his glasses north, sweeping the flat sea slowly, until a ship silhouetted itself on his eyes. He became excited. The navigator came running and gave the position of the strange ship as 34 degrees north, 123 degrees, 15 minutes east.

The captain picked up his microphone and called. "Seaweed calling minnow. Seaweed calling minnow. Killer shark operating in area four dash one three. Repeat. Killer shark in four dash one three." At once, all Japanese fishing vessels in the area hauled in their nets and headed away. This is part of the fishing war which is spreading between

The Japanese, the Koreans, the Norwegians and the Icelanders are among the great fishing nations of the world. It is getting more difficult to supply the fishing needs of the world. Nations guard their fishing shoals jealously. For centuries, all seacoast countries proclaimed sovereignty over the sea stretching three miles from the beaches. This has been enlarged unilaterally until now, some nations do not recognize the coastal proclamations of others. Syngman Rhee, the hungry fox of Korea, started the war by announcing that his country has sovereignty over all waters within 200 miles of her coastline. The Japanese, who had fished these waters for years, and who, by treaty, are denied their old fishing rights off the Kuriles, refused to recognize Rhe's equity in distant seas.

South Korea sent out patrol vessels which fired on Japanese trawlers far out of sight of land. The Japanese, who did not want to create an incident, sent fast patrol vessels to "mother" the fishing boats. When a Korean patrol boat is sighted, the Japanese advise the trawlers in code Still, Korea seizes about 30 Japanese fishing boats each year, and tosses their crews into prison. In a book called "Conquest of the Sea," the author, Cord - Christian Troebst, points out that, in 10 years, the United States will be paying to import fish from other nations.

The population explosion, in conjunction with the depletion of good fishing grounds, has caused British and Japanese trawlers to go as far as the coast of Chile for fish. Pollution by industrial plants in the United States has caused the cod, the tuna and sometimes the blue fish to move farther and farther from shore. The waters, in many instances, are unfit for fishing, for bathing, and some of the crustacea cause hepatitis. The bacteria count off most harbors is dangerously high. Must we believe, then, that there are fewer fish in the sea than there were a hundred years grounds where the miniscule food. zooplankton and phytoplankton, abound. The small fish feed on this; the big fish feed on the small fish. Still, man spends little time and even less money studying fish and their habits. In May 1961, a Danish frigate fired at a British fishing trawler, the Red Crusader, and hit it. The Danes said the British were fishing in Danish waters. Three years earlier, Iceland extended her territorial waters from four to 12 miles. The English became so angry that they sent trawlers to fish within seven miles of Iceland, and protected them with warships. Part of the British report on all fishing applies to the whole world:

fishing in 1958 brought in little more than the previous year in spite of more intense efforts. The haul per boat has dropped considerably. The catch next year will probably be even

In 1928, the Boston fishing fleet accounted for 200 million pounds of haddock alone. Cord-Christian Troebst points out that, in 1958, they brought in 70 million pounds. Two years ago, the salmon catch in Alaska dropped 40 percent. Ten years ago, 600,-000 tons of sardines were canned on the U.S. West Coast. A year later, it dropped to 5,000 tons.

The Soviet fishing fleet puts out five trawlers for every one the United States has. In 1958, the Russians caught 6,800,000 pounds of fish, a lot of it off the Grand Banks. DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE - Here's how to work it: AXYDLBAAXR is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Keyser Man Killed In Police Chase

Arthur P. Helmick Wounds Ky. Officer, Dies In Crash

A Lexington, Ky., police officer was wounded in a gun battle and his opponent, who formerly lived in Keyser, W. Va., died later after a car wrecked during a pursuit by police in that city

The dead man. Arthur P. Helmick, 34, of Cincinnati, who reportedly was released from the West Virginia Penitentiary at Moundsville some time ago, went to Lexington Saturday to visit a brother, along with another man

Lt. Morris Carter said Officer Gaylord L. Thompson, 25, of Lexington, went to the house to investigate a disturbance resulting from an argument between Helmick and his brother, Fred, Saturday night

When the officer arrived Helmick was standing outside firing a pistol at the dwelling and his traveling companions were in a car, Carter said.

Wounds Policeman

He reported that Helmick began firing as the officer apthe fire. Thompson was hit in the abdomen, thigh and knee and is reported in fair condition.

Thompson radioed for help and Helmick jumped in the car, saying "I'm shot all to pieces; let's said. The car raced away with a patrol car chasing it.

The vehicle in which Helmick was riding went out of control and struck a tree. Helmick was pinned in the wreckage and died 'Rustlers'
